

Seeding the Green Future

2nd Symposium on Participatory Research to foster Innovation in Agriculture

August 28th – 29th 2019

Botanical Garden
Hörsaal 1
Zurich, Switzerland

- Exchange on participatory research approaches
- Interact with experts from different regions and backgrounds
- Learn about challenges of supply chains and sustainable consumption such as cotton
- Group work on case studies/projects
- World Café on implementation of participatory research in own work in different cultural backgrounds

FiBL

Universität
Zürich^{ETH}

botanical garden
University of Zurich

Contact persons

Dr. Amritbir Riar
amritbir.riar@fibl.org

Dr. Monika Messmer
monika.messmer@fibl.org

Registration

[www.sgf-cotton.org/
events/2nd-symposium](http://www.sgf-cotton.org/events/2nd-symposium)

Webpage

www.sgf-cotton.org

Target groups

- International and Swiss researchers, breeders and students
- Researchers involved in Participatory research and development programs
- Project partners of Seeding the Green Future from India
- Stakeholders along the cotton supply chains
- Stakeholders involved in the seed supply chain

Thematic Focus

- Participatory research in agriculture (seed and production challenges)
- Gender issue
- Sustainable textile consumption
- Advances in organic cotton: from niche to mainstream fashion
- Certification and regulations: stringent controls: will it help farmers?
- Gamer changers: Consumers, foundations, brands, and Research: how to enhance synergies

Supported by

STIFTUNG
MERCATOR
SCHWEIZ

